Design Inspiration

Nightingale's Manhattan showroom was created in collaboration with the Huntsman Architectural Group, who is also responsible for designing our successful Chicago showroom. Huntsman is known for elevating the human experience by designing places that connect, sustain, and inspire. Their work prioritizes human wellbeing, social impact and environmental stewardship. This partnership allows Nightingale's culture and brand of quality to be cohesively displayed to clients, designers and brand influencers across North America.

Inspired by the greenery and timeless beauty of Central Park, Huntsman created an inviting and natural atmosphere to display Nightingale's diverse seating collections.

This environment was established by using a color scheme inspired by colors of the season along with earth tones in various shades of green, brown, white and beige. The color palette is neutral and understated yet luxurious and rich. Plants are a key feature of the showroom that represent the natural green environment of Central Park. The textures and décor found in the room add layers of warmth and familiarity. The use of seasonal colors and foliage creates a natural and organic atmosphere that highlights the distinctive quality and design of Nightingale products.

The showroom's unique layout and architecture is inspired by Central Park's iconic archways. This design feature is incorporated throughout Nightingale's showroom to provide visitors with a sense of familiarity and belonging.

The entryway is flanked by chairs on both sides to represent pillars of an archway. The entrance is meant to entice visitors to walk in and experience Nightingale. The rest of the showroom is thoughtfully laid out as a park's pathway to guide visitors through this artfully constructed display of Nightingale's best product offerings.

With its showroom in the New York Design Center Nightingale hopes to establish its presence and connect with the residents of this influential design community.
